PLAGUE COMES FROM GOUGHAM

Dr. Woodward, Before Health Experts, Traces Origin of District Cases.

Chief Health Officer Woodward of the District Government furnished some interesting information as to recent cases of infantile paralysis discovered in Washington, as one of the features of the final session of the two-day conference of health experts called to discuss measures to check the spread of the infant epidemic.

Dr. Woodward said that in the case of one of the recent victims who lived in a hotel in this city it was definitely ascertained that he had brought the disease from New York. The mother of another victim worked in this same hotel and while she had no contact with the patient, had handled some of the linen of the man who was stricken.

In the latest case reported in the District, that of a small boy, it was discovered that he had been playing with a boy from New York, and apparently had caught the disease in this manner, even though the New York boy was not a sufferer from the malady.

Before adjournment the conference adopted the rules and regulations of the Illinois State Board of Health, after minor amendments for the prevention and treatment of diseases in the home and designed to prevent the spread of the epidemic.

These regulations recently were prepared by Dr. C. S. Clark, Drake, of Illinois, and embody the latest features for the treatment of infantile paralysis and preventive measures.

Chickens were added to the list that includes stray cats and dogs as possible carriers of the infantile germ, after Dr. Lambert had testified that these feathered pets in one case had contracted the disease from a boy.

The final session was not completely harmonious, for Dr. Rankin, of North Carolina, arose and said that his report upon his return would be to the effect that "the conference didn't know a blooming thing about infantile paralysis and what caused its spread."

YIELD OR FACE WORSE, WILSON WARNS CHIEFS

of government ownership of railroads because the private management of them had failed.

The railroad executives and managers adjourned at 11 o'clock to meet again at 9:30 this morning. They discussed the President's suggestion, but did not attempt to arrive at any decision.

They were engaged in the preparation of a statement to be handed to President Wilson today. This statement, it is authoritatively said, will not be a reply to the President's suggestions for a settlement; it will merely present the case for the railroads. It will be intended only for the President's guidance.

The executives and managers intend that it shall make the President fully acquainted with the equities in their side in the controversy. The statement was not completed at adjournment.

It was said by a railroad president that night that no vote will be taken either today or tomorrow. The President's proposal and that the executives and managers will ask for another conference with the President at which time their final reply may be delivered. It was believed last night that this decision would be reached by Tuesday at the latest.

If the railroads refuse to accept the President's plan the brotherhoods will revert to their original demands for an eight-hour day and a time and a half pay for overtime. This decision was reached by the brotherhood chairmen tonight.

The railroad presidents are plainly disgruntled over the President's attitude. Several of them declared last night that he did not display adequate knowledge of the situation.

Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, acting as spokesman for the railroad executives, told the President that the whole principle of arbitration was at stake in the controversy. He made these main points:

1. That the principle of arbitration must be conserved for the settlement of industrial disputes.

2. That the proposed eight-hour day would not, if granted, really effect eight working hours for working men, but would result only in increased wages for the members of the four brotherhoods.

3. That the President's plan for the settlement of the controversy was impracticable.

Mr. Holden told the President that the issues involved were broader than a mere question of hours and wages. He declared that the whole principle of arbitration was at stake.

The Committee of Railway Managers, meeting tonight, and only they, represented with unlimited authority the 22 railroad systems of the United States. The presidents, vice-presidents, and representatives, declared, could only speak for their individual companies.

He said, however, that the executives had promptly responded to the President's invitation to take counsel with him. They would take his plan under consideration with open minds, he said, and return the President's answer due tomorrow.

The executives and managers went into secret session at 10:45 o'clock yesterday morning, and the meeting continued in the chiefs started for the White House shortly before 2 o'clock. After their conference with President Wilson, which lasted forty-five minutes, the executives returned to the White House at 5 o'clock until 9:30 last night.

The executives and managers at their morning conference decided upon the reply Mr. Holden should make to President Wilson in behalf of the railroads.

The entire situation was reviewed, and it was determined that a sacrifice of the principle of arbitration by the railroads might cause irreparable harm in the future. To assent to its abolition in the present instance, it was said, would mean that it never would be resorted to again, for labor, having succeeded in destroying it, would never consent to its revival.

Labor, it was said, should a surrender be made, always hereafter would insist upon immediate granting of its demands, counting upon an appeal to the President to back it, without recourse to investigation and a just verdict based on its findings.

It was insisted that the railroad employees never have received from and through the privilege of arbitration, and that if the eight-hour day with overtime pay for overtime should be granted pending an investigation into the fairness of such a wage increase the railroads could have no hope of having their injustices undone by any later inquiry.

BACON AS CANDIDATE STIMULATES INTEREST

Hughes Directs that He Must Not Be Dragged Into Primary Fight.

Special to The Washington Herald.
New York, Aug. 18.—Robert Bacon makes the announcement that he has decided to enter the Republican primaries as a candidate for United States Senator from New York. He has thus precipitated what many politicians expect will be the most impressive party scrap any candidate for President has faced in his home State for years.

Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President, has indicated in directions to friends here that he must not be dragged into the row. He also has sent specific instructions that the headquarters of the Republican National Committee in this city must be kept absolutely aloof from primary contests.

Despite this message, a statement from William M. Calder, the first-in-the-field candidate for Senator, was issued from the national headquarters yesterday after Mr. Bacon's decision to run had been announced.

FEAR FOOD SHORTAGE; TROOPS TO STAY HERE

Strike Situation Complicates Shipment of Rations to Border—Men Also May Have to Guard Trains.

The impossibility of supplying troops on the border with food in event of an effective railroad strike is the reason given by Gen. Funston for asking that no more troops, including the District National Guard, be sent to the border. Little more than cattle is raised in the border States.

Many persons, including the District soldiers, have wondered why the District National Guard are held at Camp Ordway when all organizations are practically equipped and with at least the minimum number of men.

As the railroad brotherhoods would give ten days' notice of a strike, and as it takes only five days to reach the border, some have not been able to understand why the troops are being held. An unofficial explanation given by the military officers at Camp Ordway is that the government is holding them in the East for use as strike guards to run mail and troop trains in case of need.

SENATE WILL VOTE ON SHIPPING BILL TODAY

Progress on the administration shipping bill put in the Senate yesterday where material amendments suggested by opponents of the measure were voted down, and a vote on the bill itself will be reached today.

Amendments agreed to were those of Senator Fletcher giving President Wilson almost unlimited authority to take retaliatory action against foreign nations practicing discrimination against American shipping, and that of Senator Thomas authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to refuse clearance to any vessel refusing to carry American goods to foreign ports. They are designed to prevent expected boycotting against American firms at the close of the war.

After an all-day discussion of the treaty between the United States and Denmark, for the purchase of the Danish West Indies, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told Secretary of State Lansing that it would not recommend ratification of the treaty until it has full information concerning concessions to private business interests on the islands.

PARADE PLANS DELAYED.

8,000 Washington Members of Holy Name Will March.

Presidents of twenty-two branches of the Holy Name Societies met at the Church of the Immaculate Conception last night to complete plans for the annual parade to be held by the organization in Baltimore next October. John Hadley Doyle, president of the Washington section, presided.

Due to lack of details from Baltimore action was deferred last night. It is expected that more than 8,000 members of the Washington branches will take part in the march. Arrangements are being made with railroad companies to provide business interests on the islands.

PHILATELISTS LEAVE CITY.

Delegates Return to Homes After Visiting Congress.

After a five-days' session of business and sightseeing the Southern Philatelic Association adjourned yesterday afternoon and the delegates returned to their respective homes on night trains.

Among the sights which the visitors and their wives took in yesterday were Washington's Monument and Congress in session. An auto trip about the city was also on the program.

Next year's convention place will be Minneapolis, Minn.

FAVORS SCHOOLHOUSE AS POLLING PLACE

Prof. E. J. Ward, University of Wisconsin, Defends Idea in Pamphlet Issued by Bureau of Education.

The question of using public schoolhouses for public elections is enthusiastically favored by E. J. Ward, of the University of Wisconsin, in a pamphlet issued recently by the United States Bureau of Education.

Mr. Ward has been a prominent worker in the movement to make the public schoolhouse the polling place, contending that it is the first step in actual community center development.

Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, also favors this plan.

After discussing the tremendous saving which such a course would bring about, Mr. Ward in his pamphlet says: "Hope of orderly progress for the race chiefly centers in the intelligent use of the ballot. The polling place is the primary capital in a republic. In comparison with it the City Hall, the State House, the Capitol at Washington are secondary capitals. The polling place should have the most nobly significant housing the community can give. The public school affords this housing."

PLANS FOR BOND ISSUE COMPLETED

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, practically completed details at a conference yesterday with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo for issuance of the $100,000,000 bond issue to meet expenditures due to the calling of militia to the Mexican border.

The bonds will be issued in comparatively small installments at a time, it was decided, the first issue, probably of $25,000,000 worth, to be made this fall. Other issues will follow from time to time in amounts as are made necessary to meet expenses of keeping the troops on the border.

No special act of Congress will be necessary to authorize the issue of $100,000,000 bonds which the Treasury Department yesterday estimated as necessary to meet the expenses of the Mexican situation to December 31, according to Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Eczema on Scalp

Awful Irritation

Resinol Soon Healed It Entirely

Mar. 28: "I had a severe case of eczema on my head. My scalp itched and burned and was full of scabs, and when I scratched that would, of course, pull off the scabs and left my head very sore. The irritation was something awful. I could not keep my hands out of my head. My hair became very dry and harsh and did not feel like there was any life in it. The first application of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap soothed the scalp wonderfully, and after using one jar of Resinol Ointment and three cakes of Resinol Soap my head is entirely cured—I can rest peacefully and there is no more itching. My temples were almost clean of hair and now they are covered thickly. I must say Resinol is simply wonderful for almost any kind of skin trouble. It does all you say and more." PLAN JOINT FEDERAL PROBE OF BREAD PRICE

House Ways and Means Committee and Trade Commission to Investigate Increase in Cost.

The Ways and Means Committee of the House and the Federal Trade Commission plan to co-operate in an investigation of the bread and flour situation in the United States to determine whether or not there is any economic justification for the proposed sharp increase in the prices of these staple commodities.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, author of the bill to repeal the mixed flour law, said yesterday that the Ways and Means Committee is in touch with the Federal Trade Commission.

The committee will await a report from the commission before holding any hearings in the matter, but it is likely that the former body will go into the matter thoroughly before it is done. The committee is especially interested because it has before it the Rainey bill to repeal the mixed flour law and desires a guide to action on this measure.

ARMY ORDER CHANGES 'MILITIA' INTO 'GUARD'

War Department Gives Ordway Troops Old Title, "National Guard of District of Columbia."

No longer are the units of District troops at Camp Ordway to be known as the organized militia of the District of Columbia. According to orders from the Department of the East, the District troops are to be known by their old title of "National Guard of the District of Columbia."

The Department of the East decision is based on article 70 of the recent National Defense Act, and was given in response to a request from Brig. Gen. William E. Harvey.

This will necessitate a change in all the stationery of the Guard, and the re-marking of many boxes, tents, with "D. C. N. G." instead of "D. M. D." The militiamen by an official order, has been killed and the Guardsman resuscitated.
